"The patriotism, self-sacrifice and other oldierly qualities exhibited by the studen rolunteers of Oberlin—a noble harvest from the seed which the simple-minded, jod-fearing fathers of the institution sowed in tears, and good grain from which shall abundantly spring, for generations to come, a yet nobler fruit of the true culture intelligence always waits to the bidding of duty.

An interesting scene followed, introduced by Professor Ellis by a few words in refer ence to the proposed monument to the sol diers of Oberlin, for which two thousand dollars are wanted and five hundred have een raised. We shall have more to say o this at another time. Enough at the present to say that the matter was taken up at once by the Alumni, and five hundred dollars almost immediately subscribed.

With this characteristic culmination the formal exercises of the reunion closed and the gathering dissolved, each individ ual therein bearing away therefrom the memory of a happy day, to be a joy forever. LARCELOT.

MEADVILLE, August 23. THE BURGLARY .- In my last letter the statement was m do that the loss of Mr. aid it in the bottom of the drawer intending to take it out again before starting away, but he left in a great hurry and forgot it. The thief must have been some one who had seen him place the money there. as it appears hardly probable any person would run so much risk for the small amount usually kept in the drawer. Though the losing of $200 would appea a trivial thing to many, yet upon Mr Townsend this loss falls very heavily. Now, while speaking of this gentleman, I wish to say a few words regarding his character since he came among us, a perfect stranger, less than three years ago. He sold, think, the first copies of the LEADER eve brought to this place, and throughout the olitical campaigns, and in fact all the ime, has not allowed a dialoyal publication to be distributed from his news-room or by any of his agents, so far as he could prevent. Mr. T. has done this at a pecuniary loss to himself and credit has not been given him for the ascrifices he has nade. He has, I think, distributed more loval documents in Crawford county within three years than any other person in it, let record it seems indeed hard to have his hard-earnings stolen just as he began to

The eloquent and exhaustive address of Professor Fairchild, at the Re-union of 1860, left Professor Ellis comparatively little in the way of exhuming the records of Oberlin's birth and early tion of Operlin with the question of slavery, and the influence, through lecturing, in esting statement of what Oberlin has done the service which was manifested among the students, the prayerful and tearful arm ing and sending forth of the studentnia, Dumfries, Ringgold, and many a less famous fray, paying a thrilling tribute to some of its dead and its living, he passed quent contributions to the service, alluding briefly and eloquently to the career of her more distinguished sons. A sketch of General Cox's army record was greeted with enthusiastic applause. The speaker estimated the total number of student-soldiers furnished by Oberlin at 850, among whom were 200 alumni, 100 college students, and 550 preparatory students. Among the alumni in the service, one was a Major General, one a Brigadier General, and ten Colonels. Out of 166 gentlemen who beonged to the College Department at the commencement of the war, 100 have since been in the army. Perhaps no college in careful habits, the speaker stated that out
